- Accounts (Free) Github, Slack, Twitter, HackMD

Interdisciplinary Collaboration Project

We will be doing a joint project with Political Science Graduate students (POLS 624). The project will be a twitter analysis of public opinion. You will work with a team of PolSci students, where you will provide technical and coding support and they are the content experts.

We will also have a joint Slack channel with this class, and you will be helping them learn R through a series of reviews of their “Learn R (Math 130)” homework assignments, and attending Community Coding.

More details can be found on the Project page of the course website.

Grading

The approximate contributions per type of activity are: Participation, Reading assignments XX%, Textbook Assignments XX%, and Project XX%. There are no formal exams.

Letter Grade Conversion: 100-90%: A, 89-80%: B, 79-70%: C, 69-60%: D, 0-59%: F

Policies

Adding and Dropping the course

The last day to add or drop classes without special permission by the instructor is 1/31/20. No adds or drops are allowed after 2/14/20 without a serious and compelling reason approved by the instructor, department chair, and college dean.

Americans with Disabilities Act

If you need course adaptations or accommodations because of a disability or chronic illness, or if you need to make special arrangements in case the building must be evacuated, please make an appointment with me as soon as possible, or see me during office hours. Please also contact Accessibility Resource Center (ARC) as they are the designated department responsible for approving and coordinating reasonable accommodations and services for students with disabilities. ARC will help you understand your rights and responsibilities under the Americans with Disabilities Act and provide you further assistance with requesting and arranging accommodations.
